

Estudio Billboard con Angélica María

Premiere: Tuesday, September 22 – 10P/9P Central

Encore: Sunday, September 27 – 8p/7p Central

One of Mexico's most respected and beloved performers, Angélica María is the rare talent who grew from a child star to a living legend. Her distinctive voice made her Mexico's first female rock & roll star, and conquered the world of balada ranchera as well. Known affectionately as "La Novia de México," she has starred in 60 films, many theatrical plays and musicals, and more than 20 telenovelas. In 2008 Angélica María received a Latin Grammy Lifetime Achievement Award.

In this warm, affectionate interview with Leila Cobo, Angélica María recalls her theatrical debut at age six – playing a boy - and her early success on screen. She shares the story of her transition to 60's pop icon and 70's novela superstar. While describing herself as a "millionaire in love" thanks to her devoted fans, she humorously laments that the Mexican entertainment industry does not pay the same royalties to singers and actors as the U.S. And she interprets some of her most popular songs: Dile adiós, A donde va nuestro amor, and Tu sigues siendo el mismo, y Eddy, Eddy.
